

Dr. Angel McNeeley is from Cleveland, Ohio and currently resides in Southwest Florida. She earned a Bachelor's degree in English Literature from John Carroll University, and Master's and Doctoral degrees in Educational Leadership with a focus on Curriculum and Instruction from the American College of Education. Dr. McNeeley has been an educator for 20 years serving as a classroom teacher, lead teacher, and now as an Assistant Principal at the high school level. She is a committed instructional leader who focuses on student achievement, teacher's impact on student progress, and creating learning environments which are conducive to student learning. Dr. McNeeley enjoys coaching research-based instructional strategies, is a confident strategic planner, and collects and analyzes data to plan for both faculty and student development. She is excited to be part of the Couch Courses community and looks forward to assisting professionals in their career goals.